

INCLUSIVE SCHOOL AND COMMUNITY ENGAGEMENT

ACROSS THE LIFESPAN:
AN ETHICAL IMPERATIVE

Marlborough, MA

Why Family Members Should Attend?

Often the most important support system, family members have access to evidence-based practices and research as members of TASH. TASH also provides families with the ability to cultivate relationships with other families. TASH supports a family's high expectations!

This year's New England Regional Conference, Inclusive School and Community Engagement Across the Lifespan: An Ethical Imperative, will highlight the importance of inclusive practices for people with significant disabilities. This full-day conference will offer family members the opportunity to:

- Learn about evidenced-based practices that support inclusive education and improved student outcomes for all youth.
- Hear from young adults as they share their experiences pursuing an inclusive life at college.
- Learn about person-centered planning and how it leads to sustained self-determined and self-directed pathways for individuals as they pursue their aspirations in school, work, and their communities.
- Explore personalized supports for people with intellectual and developmental disabilities to live in homes of their own and to work in the community and the "principles of connection."
- Learn about positive behavior support and the process for creating and implementing a plan that reflects respectful approaches to supporting those with challenging behaviors.
- Become knowledgeable about federal policies and initiatives around integrated employment and the impact of these efforts in New England.
